OPENING DOORS TO ECONOMIC OPPORTUNITY

OREGON Reinvestment Summit

Monday, October 2
Portland, OR

Oregon's growing economy and quality of life are attracting more and more new residents every year. However, rising housing costs in cities and rural areas are making it increasingly difficult to live there. Cities like Portland are experiencing problematic impacts from gentrification, while many parts of rural Oregon are facing a deteriorating and insufficient housing stock. Across the state, communities struggle to create an environment where small businesses can thrive.

NCRC's Oregon Reinvestment Summit, taking place October 2, 2017 in Portland, Oregon, will bring together rural and urban community-based organizations, from fair housing organizations, community development corporations (CDC), policy organizations, and financial institutions to exchange knowledge and develop strategies to promote economic opportunity for all Oregonians.

FEATURING WORKSHOPS AND PLENARIES ON:

- Equitable development in gentrifying communities
- Rural development
- Bridging the urban-rural divide
- Transitioning from renting to homeownership
- Community reinvestment
- Capital and credit for small businesses
- Affirmatively furthering fair housing
- Increasing availability of workforce housing
- Community development partnerships
